story of the prisoner was unreasonable in the nature of the wound. While the medical evidence was at variance in some points, in the main, he thought the evidence agreed. The point to be decided in the medical evidence was as to whether the shot must be believed to have been fired from a greater distance than claimed by the accused.

Mr. Bown, the defending solicitor, then addressed the jury. Mr. Bown is an effective man with a jury. He made one of his characteristic speeches last night in which he dwelt with considerable pathos on the sad and distressing features of the case. He contended that there was no evidence against the prisoner but his own confession, and he held that all the prisoner's actions subsequent to the occurrence were consistent with that confession. Mr. Bown made a strong point by pointing to the dock where the accused cowered and asking if a man like that setting out to do murder would not shoot his victim in the back and not through the face as Johnson had been shot. Mr. Bown closed a fine speech by drawing attention to the conflicting evidence of the medical men, which raised many doubts as to how the shot had been fired. It was considered that Mr. Bown had handled the case very well and he showed great generalship in not putting the prisoner on the witness stand.

His Lordship's charge was in favor of the prisoner. It went into the case fully, pretty much on the lines of the address for the defence. It was merely for the jury to decide whether or not the statement made by the prisoner were true. The acts of the prisoner had been very peculiar, but the fact that he had taken the property of the deceased was no evidence that he had done the deed designedly. His Lordship defined murder, manslaughter and justifiable homicide for the information of the jury and dismissed them to consider their verdict. The jury were out about half an hour and returned with a verdict of "not guilty." The prisoner was discharged from custody.

Johnson Acquitted

The following is an extract from the Post, referring to the murder trial which took place at Edmonton last week:

"The prisoner is a Swede named Nels Johnson, and he has a farm near Bittern Lake. More than a year ago, another Swede named Peter Johnson sold his farm in Dakota and moved to the Canadian Northwest with a view to taking up land. While travelling around the country Peter Johnson stopped at Nels Johnson's, and a friendship sprung up between them.
He had considerable money with him and he had brought some stock, which he kept at Nels' place. In November last, Peter disappeared and no trace of him could be found. Relatives of Peter came here to search for him and they came to the conclusion that Nels knew something about the man's disappearance. The Mounted Police were applied to and Constable Mott was detailed to work on the case, and with a search warrant he went to Nels Johnson's. There he found many of the effects of the missing man. This is the explanation that Nels gave of Peter's disappearance. He had decided to go back to Dakota and had sold to Nels a team of horses for $185 and a wagon for $25. Nels had driven him to Wetaskiwin. He had afterwards received a letter from Peter at Minneapolis, but being asked where the letter was he said that he had destroyed it. When the police appeared on the scene Nels broke down and declared that Peter and he had a quarrel in which Peter had been killed and that he had secreted the body. He led the police to a swamp near Bittern Lake where he pointed out to Inspector Belcher the body lying in a pool of water.

Nels Johnson then made the following statement: "Last November, Peter Johnson went with me for a cow at McMillan's. I borrowed a sleigh.
Peter and myself drove to McMillan's.
On the road home when about two miles from my house Peter took me by the throat. I picked up the axe and struck him on the upper part of the cheek. Peter then took hold of his rifle and I also took hold of it near the muzzle and swung the muzzle round towards Peter's head and it went off. We had been quarrelling about our work. I put the body in a mud hole about half a mile east of my house. About a month ago I took the body up and buried it about two miles distant from my house. I believe it is there now.

We were both mad when Peter seized me by the throat. I do not think he intended to kill me. I then struck him with the axe. He then got hold of the rifle and in the struggle it went off, shooting Peter through the head. This is the truth of the matter. (Signed) Nels Johnson."

At the inquest which was held at Bittern Lake by Dr. Robertson, of Wetaskiwin, Nels Johnson made a statement similar to the statement made at time of arrest.

Mr. Charles deW. McDonald, the crown prosecutor, presented the case for the crown, and Mr. J. C. F. Bown defended the prisoner. The latter, who is a man of about forty-five or fifty apparently, has failed very much since first brought here. It is evident from his appearance and actions that his position weighs very heavily upon him.

It was on the day following his arrest that the prisoner made the statement that Peter had come to his death while they were quarrelling and struggling for the possession of the rifle. It was then also that he volunteered to take the police to where he had put the body in a slough. Major Belcher described how the police and the prisoner had gone to the place and how the body had been discovered.
There was no pressure whatever brought to bear on the prisoner to cause him to make a statement. He was eager to make it.

Nels Johnson said in his statements that in the struggle for the rifle, it had discharged and that bullet had struck Peter in the right cheek. The inference drawn was that a bullet so fired would have an upward range and that the flesh round the wound would be burned or powder marked.
Dr. Braithwaite testified that the bullet did range upward, breaking the bones above the eye and shattering those behind the apex of the nose, but there were no powder marks or burns on the flesh. There was no exit of the bullet and the bullet had not been found. Had fallen into the mouth probably and then out. The doctor did not think the prisoner's statement of the occurrence a true one.
Dr. Robertson could not form an opinion as to whether the wound might be caused in the manner described by the defendant in his statement, except that he would think the muzzle must have been farther from the head. Dr. Harrison thought that the wound as described might be caused at any range. Dr. Wilson was of opinion that the wound was not such as he would expect at the distance claimed by the defendant. He thought the wound was inflicted at some distance.

The evidence for the Crown was all in on Tuesday and the Crown rested their case. The defence produced no evidence and Mr. Macdonald addressed the jury. The Crown Attorney congratulated the jury in the conclusion of the trial. The case was a strange one owing to the confession of the prisoner, without which no more than suspicion could have rested on him. He wanted first to examine the case without reference to the medical evidence. The history of the case was that Nels Johnson came from British Columbia in very bad circumstances, while Peter Johnson brought considerable property with him from Dakota and a sum of money. Up to the moment of Peter's disappearance there is no evidence of Nels being in any better circumstances, but on the disappearance of Peter, Nels appeared as the owner of a pair of horses and other property also possessed himself of some of the property of Peter, for part of which he claims to have paid.

Taking up the conduct of the prisoner the Crown Prosecutor pointed out that that conduct was not such as would be expected from an honest man who had killed his friend by misadventure. He contended that the

The medal is solid silver and has the Queen's head on one side, while the reverse side contains the words "North West Rebellion, 1885." On the rim is stamped "979, Constable G. H. L. Bessange." Needless to say it is highly prized by Mr. Bessange.

Albert Lawson has just finished the installing of a complete system of waterworks in the Alberta Hotel. The water is easily forced to a large tank at the top of the hotel by an Anderson, double action force pump, and from there is distributed through the house by piping. This is a great labor saving, and is highly appreciated by Mr. Stetka and his staff of assistants. A pipe was also laid from the pump to a large tank in the barn, a distance of 120 feet, and the pump can be easily operated by one man. Mr. Lawson has the agency for this pump and has sold a large number through the district.

In our last issue referring to W. H. Horie we stated that Mr. Horie was "arrested," instead of using the word "arrested," as was intended. In justice to Mr. Horie we state that he was not arrested.

The treaty money was paid to the Indians on the Reserve last Thursday and Friday and they came to town en masse on Monday and Tuesday to do their trading. They gave a pow-wow on Tuesday evening, which was a most interesting spectacle to the town-folk. We do not wish to make it too long to do their trading.

Our congratulations are extended to Editor Brian, of The Ponoka Herald, on the occasion of his marriage to Miss Wansley, late of South Dakota. The Herald has made marked improvement since Bro. Forty Horses Killed.

A serious wreck occurred on the C. & E. line three miles south of town early Sunday morning, when a special freight train ran into a large bunch of horses owned by W. H. Englestone. Thirty-three horses were killed outright and seven others had to be shot as it was impossible for them to recover from their wounds. This is the best bunch of horses yet brought to this section and it was a sorry sight to see so many prime animals brought to such an untimely end. Many from town walked down to the scene of the disaster, but when they arrived a ghastly sight met their eyes—some horses were cut in half, others were terribly mangled, while others had their heads completely severed. The Indians were soon on the scene, and took possession of the carcasses and judging by their activity, very little of the animals would be wasted. The engine was derailed, but fortunately no other damage was done to the train.

Clara Hamner Company.

The Clara Hamner Co. opened a series of concerts here on Monday evening with "Master and Man." On Tuesday evening they put "La Belle Marie" on the board, and on Wednesday evening "Brother against Brother" was played by request. On Monday evening a fair home greeted the performers, but the audience grows larger each succeeding evening, which proves that the company are growing in popularity. The company comprises twelve people, and we do not exaggerate when we state that they put on the best series of concerts ever played in Wetaskiwin.

One pleasing feature is that there are no long waits between the acts which weary the audience. But the audience is kept in the height of good humor during the entire evening. Many new specialties are introduced which delight the audience. The company deserve the large patronage they are receiving.

At the close of Wednesday evening's performance a most enjoyable dance was held. The company will be here the balance of the week on Thursday evening, playing being "A True Kentuckian."
